Gifts of books have been received from Jesse McIntire, Miss Martha Learnard, the State Board of Health, and one anonymous.

The Christian Science Journal is donated by the Christian Science Society of Chester, and the Youth's Companion by Miss Lucy C. Bell.

Ten magazines are subscribed for regularly by the library and find ample patronage.

An unusually large number of new books have been added to the library this year, among them the "Papers and Messages of the Presidents," in ten volumes, valuable for consultation and reference.

The circulation for the year shows some advance over 1904.

SCHOOL REPORT.

GENERAL REMARKS.

During the past year there have been twenty-nine weeks of school. The pupils have been under the care of competent teachers, and the usual amount of work has been done. There is every reason to believe that the quality of work has been up to the standard of past years. It is easy to see where there might be improvement even in the best of schools, and a few suggestions from those who have watched the progress of the children may not be out of place.

We begin with the parents, for it is upon them that the success or failure of our schools largely depends. should see to it that their children get to school on time and that they go every day, unless prevented by illness. Parents help the teachers by visiting the school where their children attend, and letting the teacher know that her work is appreciated. A teacher's work may fail of the best results for want of co-operation and sympathy on the part of those who at home have entire responsibility for the children. Parents, to be sure, have interested themselves to a good degree in the schools, but it would be well if ALL parents could see for themselves the kind of work that is being done and note whether their children are as diligent as they should be. Parents should stand by the teacher in her efforts to secure good discipline, for without this the school cannot succeed In school the teacher must stand in the place of the parents and enforce obedience when necessary. If she is able to do this the parents should be thankful, even if heroic measures have to be resorted to.

In these days people are asking if the schools cannot do more than they have been doing for the moral training of children. It has been said that the morality of the country has been "subordinated to success if not to greed." Would it not be a good thing if every child could be given some hints as to what true success is, and be taught that the real wealth of the nation is measured not by what the people have, but by what they are.

If a word might be added concerning the teachers, it would be to remind them of the limitations of human strength. There is such a thing as undertaking too much in society, and overtaxing one's nervous force, so as not to be able to do justice to one's self in the regular work of the school. We are still of the opinion that a majority of the pupils who attend an academy out of town would be better off if they would remain in our own schools until they are better prepared for a more advanced course. The money which the town pays for the tuition of pupils who are obliged to repeat, a year's work in one of these schools is not used to good advantage. The absence of these pupils cripples our own schools, and they waste their own time by undertaking work to which they are not equal.

At the beginning of the school year the Brick school-house was much in need of repairs. The room has been furnished with a new ceiling like that of the Grammar School, and has been painted and papered. Some other improvements have been made and the school-room is now tidy and comfortable. The Knowles school-house was also put into good condition at slight cost and now the pupils of District 6 and 8 have a large, airy room in which to work. It is difficult in making a transfer from one school to another to satisfy everybody, but in this case the good of all was considered. The Towle school-house was too small to accommodate the number of pupils in attendance, and the only practicable thing to do was to shift over to the larger building. We are glad to say that the families in both districts have fallen in with this plan. Doubtless the larger room and better location have been an advantage to the children on the score of health, if for no other reason.

The opportunities and privileges of another school year are past. How much has been made of them the future alone will tell. Pupils have seemed to be interested in their work. If in any case good progress has not been made the blame must rest upon the pupil. Good work means steady advancement, and without some application by the pupil the best teacher in the world cannot be of much help. We believe that the year has been profitable to all who have tried to do their part.
